

2

About This Report

3

Executive Summary

6

Report Findings

6

The U.S. economy is experiencing a fundamental transformation that has important implications for freight and passenger transportation.

9

Transportation infrastructure capacity is more vital than ever to the success of U.S. industries.

14

A well-designed, interconnected transportation network with adequate capacity and efficient management has significant economic and social benefits to the nation's economy.

16

It is time to end business as usual.

20

Conclusions

21

Advisory Committee