EIW PROMOTES FROM WITHIN FOR NEW DIRECTOR OF SALES

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 28, 2019 – Eagle Iron Works is excited to announce the promotion of Trevor Park to Director of Sales. In his new position, Trevor is responsible for directly overseeing the sales and customer service functions for Eagle Iron Works with all sales and customer service team members reporting to him directly. He will lead the growth of the project line and market share of Eagle Iron Works through dealer development and excellent customer service.

Trevor first joined McLanahan Corporation in October 2013, working primarily with filter presses in what was then called the company's Environmental Division. He eventually took roles in international product management and sales for the waste industry before shifting to join Eagle Iron Works as Regional Sales Manager in May 2018. Over the last year, he has been directly responsible for the western United States and dealer and customer relationships within this territory. He has also been an active member of the aggregate industry, participating in the NSSGA's Young Leaders program.

Trevor earned his Bachelor of Science degree in mechanical engineering from Utah State University and will be finishing up his MBA through the University of Utah this summer. Following the completion of his MBA, Trevor and his family will be relocating to Des Moines, Iowa to work directly from the Eagle Iron Works facility.

“We are very excited to have Trevor filling this role,” said John Ware, Managing Director of Eagle Iron Works. “He has proven a valuable asset and built strong industry relationships in his short time with us. We look forward to seeing him grow in this position.”
